From The President

Hi: Rainmakers:

The Sunday 05/20/07 ride to Cody, was a good ride. In spite of the weather which was cloudy and windy all day. We started out with 19 bikes. We pulled into Cody for gas and then we were going to the Holiday Inn for lunch.

" THIS IS WHERE WE LOST A MEMBER."

As we pulled out of the station to go for lunch there was a members bike still at the gas pump, and the member was in the station restroom, when he came out we were gone, and he had no idea where we had gone.

The drag rider needs to make sure that all bikes that pull into a gas station, also leave the station and that no one is left behind. Also all members in the group need to be informed of where the gas stops and lunch stops are going to be, so that if they get separated from the group, they still know where to go.

I know that we all know this, but some of us have been riding these same routes for a long time, and we just assume that everyone knows where we stop.

So for the sake of all new members lets watch out for each other, and make sure that we all start the ride together, and that we all get home together.

I understand that some riders drop off and go to other places, and this is fine, but lets not lose anyone that wants to continue on with the group.

Happy Fathers Day... for those who are dad's

- A. For those with no children - this is totally hysterical!
- B. For those who already have children past this age, this is hilarious.
- C. For those who have children this age, this is not funny.
- D. For those who have children nearing this age, this is a warning.
- E. For those who have not yet had children, this is birth control.

The following came from an anonymous Mother in Austin , Texas. Things I've learned from my Boys (honest and not kidding):

1. A king size waterbed holds enough water to fill a 2000 sq. ft. house 4 inches deep.
2. If you spray hair spray on dust bunnies and run over them with roller blades, they can ignite.
3. A 3-year old Boy's voice is louder than 200 adults in a crowded restaurant.
4. If you hook a dog leash over a ceiling fan, the motor is not strong enough to rotate a 42 pound Boy wearing Batman underwear and a Superman cape. It is strong enough, however, if tied to a paint can, to spread paint on all four walls of a 20x20 ft. room.
5. You should not throw baseballs up when the ceiling fan is on. When using a ceiling fan as a bat, you have to throw the ball up a few times before you get a hit. A ceiling fan can hit a baseball a long way.
6. The glass in windows (even double-pane) doesn't stop a baseball hit by a ceiling fan.
7. When you hear the toilet flush and the words "uh oh", it's already too late.
8. Brake fluid mixed with Clorox makes smoke, and lots of it.
9. A six-year old Boy can start a fire with a flint rock even though a 36-year old Man says they can only do it in the movies.
10. Certain Lego's will pass through the digestive tract of a 4-year old boy.
11. Play dough and microwave should not be used in the same sentence.
12. Super glue is forever.
13. No matter how much Jell-O you put in a swimming pool you still can't walk on water.
14. Pool filters do not like Jell-O.
15. VCR's do not eject "PB &J" sandwiches even though TV commercials show they do.
16. Garbage bags do not make good parachutes.
17. Marbles in gas tanks make lots of noise when driving.
18. You probably DO NOT want to know what that odor is.
19. Always look in the oven before you turn it on; plastic toys do not like ovens.
20. The fire department in Austin , TX has a 5-minute response time.
21. The spin cycle on the washing machine does not make earthworms dizzy.
22. It will, however, make cats dizzy.
23. Cats throw up twice their body weight when dizzy.
24. 80% of Men who read this will try mixing the Clorox and brake fluid.
25. Women will pass this on to almost all of their friends, with or without kids.

To Correctly Display the U.S. Flag, Think Parade!

By Sharon Stanley and Edward C. Jones, II
Photos by Jerry & Leisa Childers

With Flag Day approaching June 14 (the 108th anniversary of the official adoption of The Stars and Stripes), we thought it important to review the basics of how to correctly display the United States Flag on your motorcycle.

The easiest rule of thumb to remember when you fly the U.S. Flag on your bike is that it should be on your right-hand side as you sit facing forward on your bike. In other words, it should be over your right shoulder. So just think of the Flag as always being your "Right-hand man."

This is called your "marching right," and here's why. Picture yourself marching, or riding, as a participant in a parade. You are moving forward and displaying The Colors to the viewers ahead. To those viewers ahead, the flag should appear to be coming at them to their left (the "viewer's left") which, of course, means that you are displaying it on your "marching right."

The language behind this general rule,

The U.S. Flag is correctly positioned on this bike because you—the viewer standing in front of the oncoming parade—observe it to be on your left (the rider's right, as he rides).

which comes from the "Federal Flag Code, Section 3," can seem a bit confusing: "The flag, when carried in a procession with another flag or flags, should be either on the marching right; that is, the flag's own right, or, if there is a line of other flags, in front of the center of that line."

The flag's own right? How about we just concentrate on the "marching right" for now and leave that other phraseology for another day. Again, the more you think about the display of the Flag in terms of it always being on parade, the easier the whole logic of the rule will become.

The U.S. Flag is correctly positioned on this bike because it is placed higher than, and in front of, the other flags surrounding it.

The U.S. Flag is correctly positioned on this bike because it is placed above the other flag on the same pole.

For instance, in a courtroom, the audience who face the judge are considered the viewers; therefore, the judge is more or less "on parade" as he or she faces the audience—so the U.S. Flag appears to the judge's "marching right." Or, at a town council meeting, if you are an audience member, the town council members are the "parade marchers displaying the Flag to you" as you sit facing them; therefore, the U.S. Flag should be to their "marching right."

The biggest mistake folks make when placing the U.S. Flag on their bike, it seems, is to think that the viewer is in the car behind them when, in fact, they should always consider the viewer to be in the car approaching them from the opposite direction.

The correct order (as the viewer looks at the display of flags) is: the Stars and Stripes (to the viewer's extreme left), then other national flags in alphabetical order, then state flags, county and city flags, and, finally, organizational flags and personal flags.

The exceptions to this rule of "marching right" are when the U.S. Flag is placed higher than, and in front of, other flags or is placed above other flags on the same pole.

Of course, if you hail from a country other than the U.S., then your country's flag would take the place of honor at the viewer's extreme left (your "marching right").

It's really not that difficult to master the concepts of "marching right" and "viewer's left" in order to remember how to correctly display the Flag. Just commit yourself to remembering those two all-important words: Think parade!
